St. Louis, MO— The Pesticide Stewardship Alliance (TPSA) held its annual conference in February and presented the 2024 Leadership in Product Stewardship Award to Steven Brunt, BASF.

Steve Brunt is a promoter of the proper use of pesticides his entire professional life and has taken that skill set and passion to become a backbone of TPSA. Steve exemplifies all of TPSA's purpose and core values. Steve served on the board starting in 2016. In 2019, he was elected TPSA President. However, he doesn't need a title to be one of the greatest supporters and promoters of TPSA. He has spent numerous years providing his expertise to various committees and encourages others to get involved with TPSA through committees and attending the annual conference. He has an inclusive approach which includes a great sense of humor.

The Pesticide Stewardship Alliance (TPSA), founded in 2000, is an organization of federal, state, and local governmental agencies, educational and research institutions, public organizations, private corporations, and individuals that are actively involved in various aspects of pesticide stewardship. The goals of TPSA are to increase the effectiveness, efficiency and longevity of various pesticide stewardship efforts.

Please check the TPSA web site for more information. The 2025 Pesticide Stewardship Conference is scheduled for February 4-6 in Raleigh, North Carolina.
